

Selecting DOM Elements (getElementById, querySelector)

To change or read something on a webpage, first we need to select the element from the DOM tree.

1. `getElementById()`

This selects an element by its id attribute.

2. `querySelector()`

This selects the first element that matches a CSS selector.

3. `querySelectorAll()`

This selects all elements that match the selector.